

Moe and the Thieves (correct version)

After many years of hard service, Moe's donkey died. He decided to go to the market to buy a new one. He walked through the mountains to the market in town. When he got there he bought a fresh faced grey donkey with huge ears and long teeth. He set off home again with the donkey behind him on a rope.

Two thieves were watching him as he came up to the mountains. They smiled. 'It will be easy to steal this donkey,' they said to each other.

As Moe came round a corner, one of the thieves quickly ran behind him, took the rope off the donkey and put it round his own neck. The second thief led the donkey away.

After a few minutes, Moe turned to look at his donkey. There was no donkey, just a young, scruffy man with a rope around his neck. "Who are you?" Cried Moe.

"Please do not hurt me master," said the thief.

"Where is my donkey?"

"Please master, do not hurt me! When I was younger I was such a naughty boy that my mother put a curse on me and changed me into a donkey. Now, by the grace of God, you have bought me and the curse has been lifted."

Moe thought for a minute. The thief did have the same fresh face and long teeth as his donkey. He let the boy go and travelled home.

The next week, Moe went back to the market to get another donkey. He could not believe his eyes when he saw the same animal he had bought the week before. He moved close and whispered in its ear.

"So you have been a naughty boy again?"

downloaded at

English Language Space Station.com

Moe and the Thieves

Arrange the word order to make the sentences correct. Some sentences do not need to be changed

After years many of service hard, Moe's donkey died. decided He to go market to the to buy a new one. He through the walked mountains the market to in town. When got bought there he he a fresh faced and donkey grey huge ears with long teeth. He set home again with rope the donkey off behind him on a.

Two were watching the thieves him as he came up mountains to. They smiled. 'It be easy will to this steal donkey,' they to each said other.

As Moe came round a corner, one the thieves of quickly ran behind him, took the off the rope donkey and put it round his own neck. The thief second led the donkey away.

After look a few minutes, Moe turned to at his donkey. was no neck donkey, just a young, There scruffy man with a rope around his.

"Who are you?" Cried Moe.

"Please hurt do not me master," said the thief.

"Where my is donkey?"

"Please master, do me not hurt! When was I younger I a was such naughty boy that my mother put a curse on me and changed me into a donkey. Now, by the of God grace, you bought have me and the curse has been lifted."

Moe minute thought for a. The thief did have the same fresh face and long teeth as his donkey. He home the boy go let and travelled.

The next to the week, went Moe back market to get another donkey. He could not his believe eyes when the he saw same animal he had bought before the week. He close moved and its whispered in ear.

"So you have again been naughty a boy?"

downloaded at

English Language Space Station.com